For the Consideration of Self-Identified Allies:

Is your allyship active or passive?

Do you check in with and listen to the needs and concerns of your neighbors?

Can you empathize with those who have lost faith in the political system?

Are you able to identify what your communities at work, church, school, etc. do to support your peers? To alienate them?

How can you share access to your privilege?

Do you avoid the comfort of disinterest?

Do you lift as you climb?

Do your concern for diversity reflect a quantitative requirement or a genuine interest in the representation of all people?

Do you make time to involve yourself with issues that do not have an impact on your life?

Do you consider how the language of policy and voting can be made more accessible to all in your community?

What demands can you make of the leaders of your communities?

When you participate in politics, whom does your participation elevate?

How can you fund or support voters who have limited access to time, money, childcare, or transportation?

What steps are you taking to make sure all community members are being heard?

Do you make sure other community members feel safe from miscarried justice?

Do you have a linguistic or educational skill that you can donate to the benefit of your community?

For the Consideration of Self-Identified Allies:

Spring Present Box Exhibition
Candice Davis: Lifting As We Climb
March 5 - March 22 with performances on March 5 & 7

For more information visit bmoca.org